		2025 OUTLOOK: Moss was released by Cincinnati in July. The veteran back opened last season as the Bengals' lead back, playing 63% of the snaps and handling 12.1 touches per game. That helped him to three 14-plus point fantasy outings during Weeks 1-4, but he then started losing work to Chase Brown before going down with a season-ending neck injury in Week 8. Brown dominated the work and played at a high level from that point forward, which, along with the neck injury, made Moss expendable. The 27-year-old is a capable rusher and receiver, so perhaps he'll end up back on the fantasy radar down the road.

		2025 OUTLOOK: Davis is entering his sixth NFL season, but remains a free agent after being released by the Jaguars. Needless to say, his lone year in Jacksonville didn't go as planned, with Davis managing just 4.2 targets per game in 10 outings. He had one big game (a two-TD effort on a season-high eight targets in Week 6), but failed to reached double-digit points in any other game. Davis has yet to finish a season better than 36th in fantasy PPG (one finish better than 51st) and that was despite four seasons in the Bills' high-scoring offense. Regardless of where he lands, the 26-year-old will remain a situational vertical threat and is unlikely to see enough work to allow anything close to weekly flex consideration.
